SETTING THE PACE

The Hendersonville High School flag corps once again adds a bit of flash to the Apple Parade.

Many students go to work, to practice, or to socialize after school. David Aiken is leaving school to pursue some endeavor.

At an early morning Student Council meeting, Sarah Murdock is wide awake and smiling.

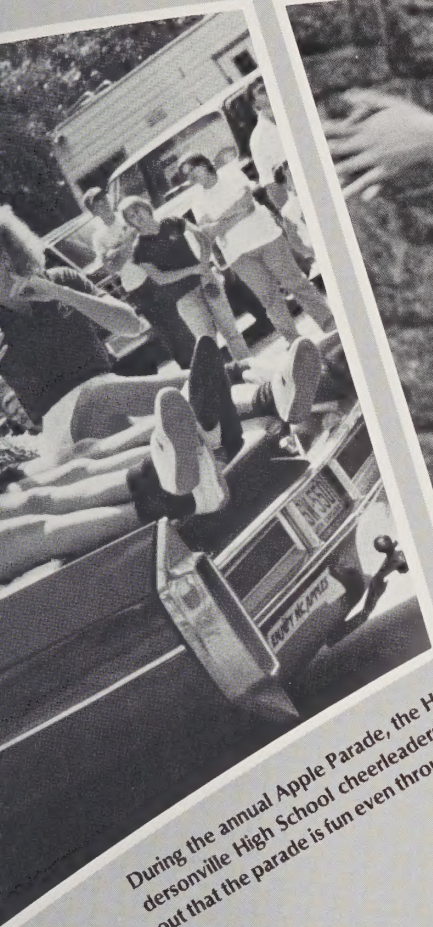

How does he do it? During school, Kevin Jennings drops to the floor and shows his eye-catching break-dancing abilities.

In any competition, the leader of the pack is the pace setter. He is the one who not only sets an example for all others but also puts himself in the position for attack. The pace setter is always being challenged for his pace; and, therefore, he must always be striving for a better one. He must stay ahead. Hendersonville High School has always set the pace in academics, arts, and athletics.

SETTING THE PACE

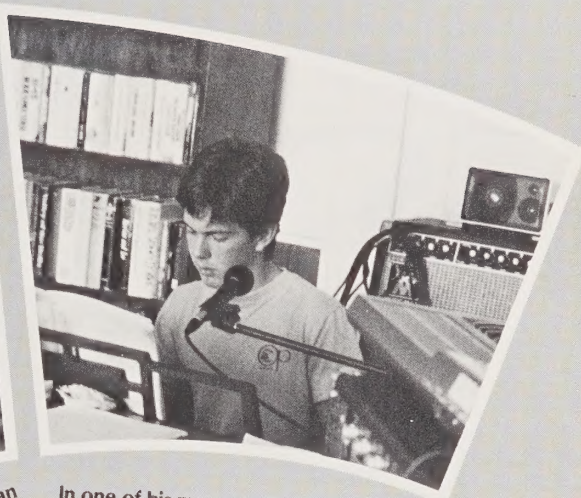

The band has maintained its superior rating for many years. The band has achieved this rating through many hours of practice; however, the band members seem to be enjoying themselves.

During the annual Apple Parade, the Hendersonville High School cheerleaders find out that the parade is fun even through the heat.

No pain, no gain! Andrea Carter's shirt can attest to the fact that only practice makes perfect.

In one of his many practice sessions Gerry Diamond shows his ability playing the piano and singing.

Having been a 3-A school for many years but recently having dropped to a 1-A conference, Hendersonville High School has now become a true pace setter in the competition. With excellent records in 3-A competition, Hendersonville High School has become the team to beat. Hendersonville High School has traditionally strived for the best in everything. It continues to set the pace.

STUDENT LIFE

Before band practice, Roy Masters, Susan Phillippe, Gerry Diamond, and Jamie Bowling get in a little fun prior to the hard work starting.

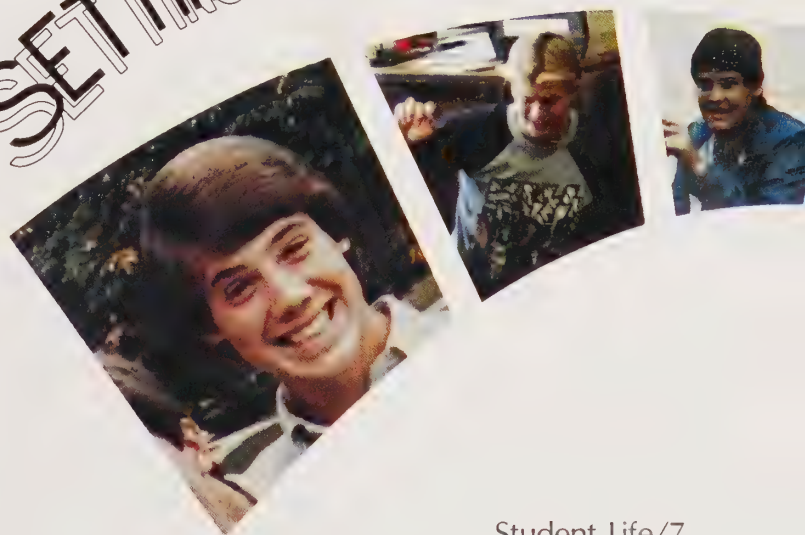

An important part of physics is the lab work done to increase the understanding of physics. Ben Duncan has just set a physics car in motion as Jim Myers watches the results.

Making the homeroom announcements is one of Shelly Webb's responsibilities as student body president.

On Tuesday mornings, Student Council members meet to vote on various issues and to give out the weekly schedule. Ken Cleary, one of the vice-presidents, is involved in a discussion as Angie Templeton, the other vice-president, looks on.

SETTING THE PACE

The crowd had grown to an unexpected size. The band, Dionisus, and the crew had worked so hard earlier that Saturday setting up the equipment and decorations that no one could believe the concert hall they were in now was formerly the Opportunity House. After having danced an hour, the crowd realized it was time for the concert to start. Everyone crowded around the stage just in time to see thick clouds of fog engulf the stage. Suddenly the lights came on and revealed the band, which had begun to play their opening song.

The Rock 'n Roll Ball, introduced by leaders of the Opportunity House and local officials, was a new concept in Hendersonville this year. These people developed the Rock 'n Roll Ball with the idea that it would give teenagers in Hendersonville something wholesome to do. With cooperation from local businesses and various individuals, Dionisus and its crew put on a successful show.

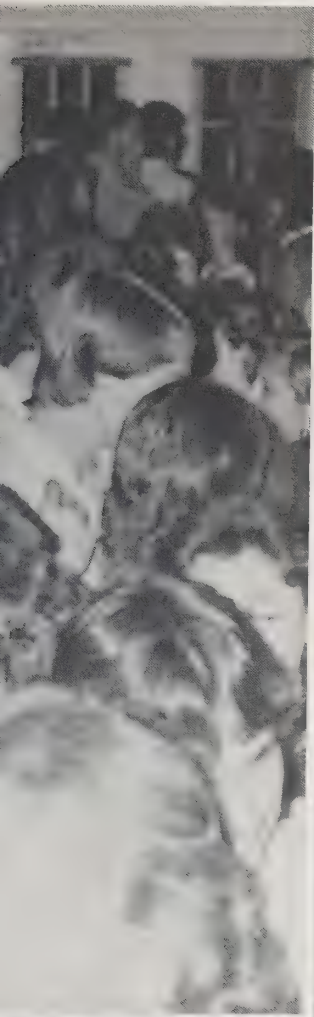

Looking cool, Kevin Jennings and David Aiken impersonate crowd control at the Rock 'n Roll Ball.

The crowd at the Rock 'n Roll Ball waits expectantly for Dionisus to make one of its first appearances.

ROLL BALL

During the concert, Sam Swearingen hits a high note in one of the songs.

Was it all work? The early morning setup was a lot of work, but Sam Swearingen and the other members of Dionisus seem to be enjoying themselves.

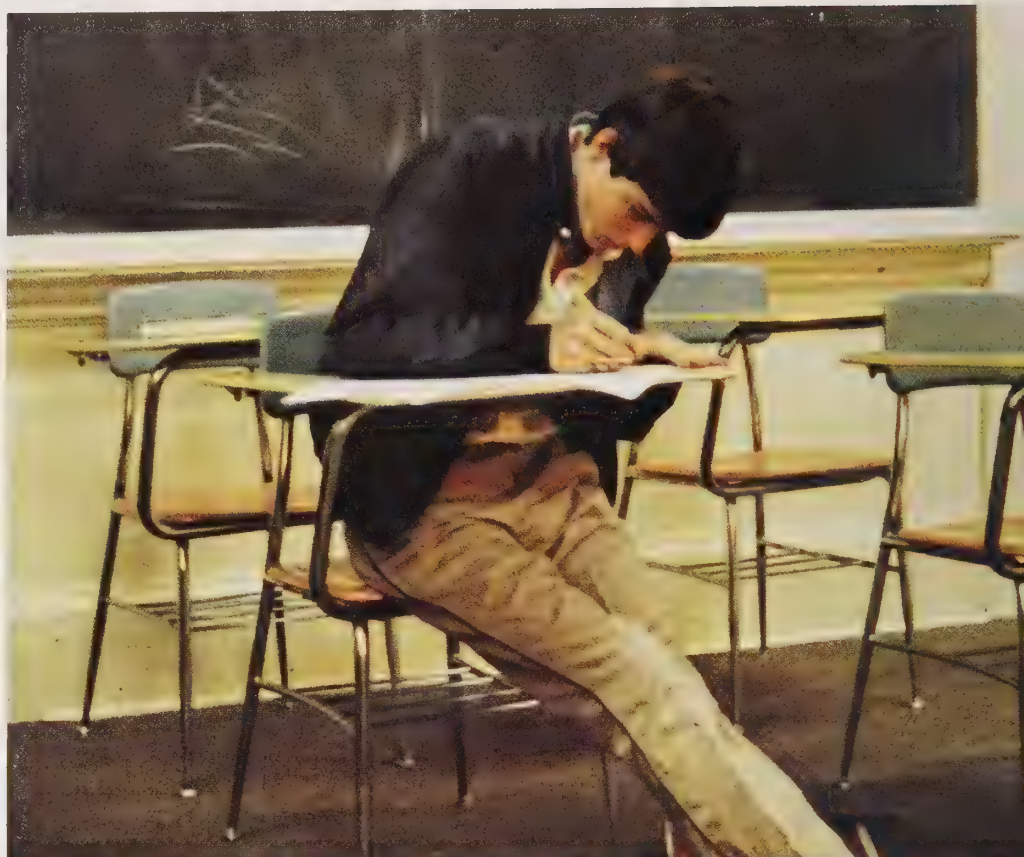

Lining up after school, the underclassmen wait to get their picture taken, while Mrs. Alice Lawson keeps everyone under control. Although underclassmen pictures were taken during school last year, new regulations within the school permitted picture taking only before and after school.

During homeroom, Chris Vaughn writes an essay on one of the assigned topics.

New to the Hendersonville High School sports program this year, the soccer team has done well. David Adams breaks up a scoring drive by the opposing team.

LES AFFAIRES

NOUVEAU

As the school year began, the students were greeted with many new ideas and plans. The major project was a new concept for improving reading and writing skills. Every Tuesday and Wednesday morning, the homeroom time was extended to twenty minutes, in which time the students read on any subject they chose or wrote on an assigned topic. Along with this idea was a policy assuring the student of five and one-half hours of total learning time each day.

The students also had a few more new people to meet in the upcoming year. The freshmen class was the biggest class in the school; this increased number of freshmen meant the seniors would have more people to initiate. This class, added to increased enrollment in the other three classes, created a growing student body. And all of these people had one more brand new thing to look forward too: the decision between Coke and Pepsi had grown to Classic Coke, New Coke, and Pepsi.

In computer science, freshmen learn about the terminology and history of computers, as well as basic programming skills.

Pondering over which soft drink to support, Laura Johnson has quite a decision ahead of her.

CAN TALK THESE HALLS

Doing her part, Karen Lewis is putting the final touches on a poster.

Waiting for Angie Templeton to tear off a piece of tape, Brenda Becher holds a poster in place.

While Beth Bond and Beth Anderson mix up the red paint, Kevin Jennings does not seem to be helping much.

THESE HALLS CAN TALK

One event that always preceded a Friday night ball game was decorating the halls on Thursday evening. Each week a certain class had the privilege of adorning the first floor hall with posters and banners to promote team spirit. On Friday mornings our first sight of the inside of the school was a banner with some traditional slogan such as "We Love Cats!" Besides providing a spirited atmosphere, hall decorating allowed artistic students to express their creativity and let our team know that we were behind them all the way. The only draw-back to red and white streamers, banners, and posters on Friday mornings was taking them down and cleaning up on Friday afternoons.

Feeling quite confident about the banner she has just finished, Regina Mitter smiles in pride as Lisa Mazzeo looks on.

GAME TIME

Football season was one of the biggest seasons of the year at Hendersonville High School. Gametime was taken very seriously by many groups. The members of the National Honor Society, the Key Club, the Keywanettes, and the Catbackers were there hours before the game, selling tickets, running the concession stand, or selling programs.

Individual players worked very hard all summer, and the teams practiced long and diligent hours in the early fall. They knew people were depending on them to play their best, but they were really playing for themselves and their school. The personal satisfaction of winning for Hendersonville High School and themselves made the players feel proud.

Gametime would not have taken place without the spirit generated by the crowd, the cheerleaders, and the band. These people lifted the players spirits when they were down and cheered them on to victory. Without these people, gametime would not have been as enjoyable and exciting.

Football was a collaboration of many people with one common purpose in mind: to produce an unforgettable and exciting night of Gametime.

GAME TIME

The football game is greatly intensified with the help of spirited spectators.

From Gametimes of the past, this traditional sign can boast of Hendersonville High School's excellence in many different sports.

The Hendersonville High School varsity cheerleaders do an excellent job of lifting the team's spirits.

WHEELS

Refurbished and good as new, Brad Roger's Dodge Dart is an old classic.

Ben Duncan and John Norman show that Ben's Camaro is not just for driving but also for socializing.

Showing off his new Grand Am, Shea Tisdale knows he travels in style.

A major part of a student's life in high school was getting his license and, for the lucky ones, a car. Students had cars ranging from old station wagons to brand new sportscars.

When the student got a car, many new opportunities opened up for him. He could go to the movies without having his parents dropping him off in front of everyone, go to the parties without having to "find a ride," and he would have that extra freedom of not having his parents know where he was all the time. Everyone looked forward to receiving his license and getting a car. Having a car added a freedom that the student never had until he got his "wheels."

While many people drive expensive European sportscars, one student picks America's less expensive answer to the sportscar market, the 1985 Trans Am.

With the increase in automobile exports by Japan, many students are driving cars such as this Toyota MR2.

ARTS ARE BASIC

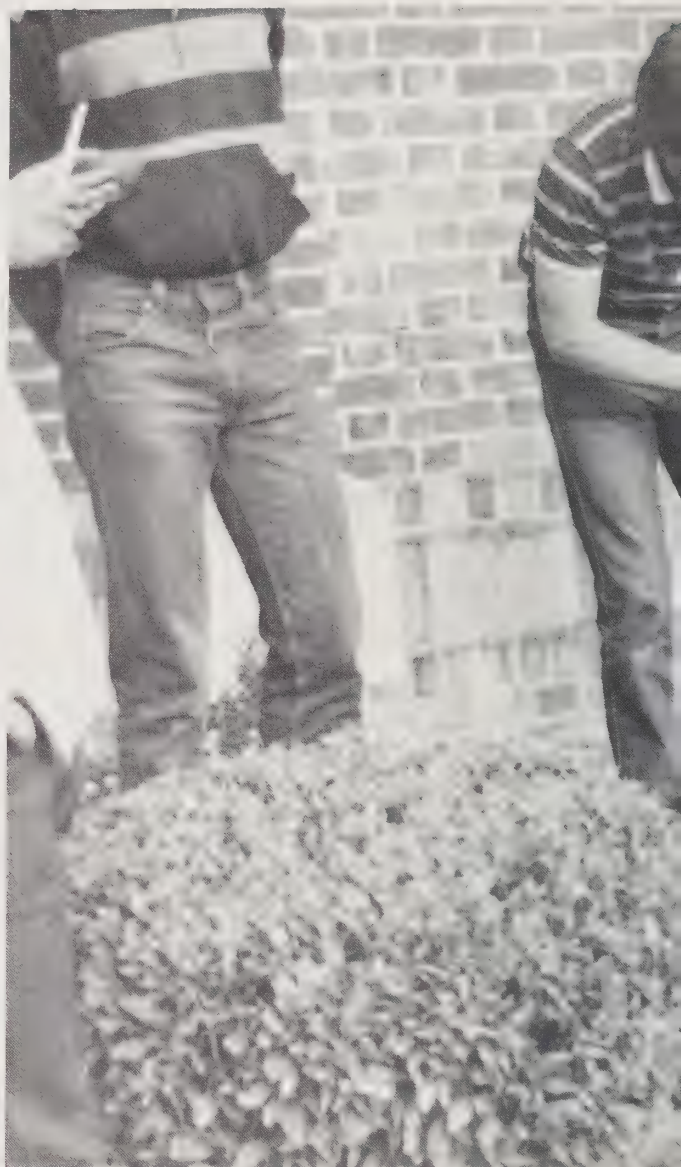

While many students concentrated on academics or athletics, other students involved themselves in areas such as art, drama, band and chorus. The students in these areas spent much of their time rehearsing for presentations of their talent.

The students in art did many new things. Among these artistic endeavors were several murals. One mural done by Phil Cheney and Slade Tanner depicted several teachers and school officials in a comic-book style. Another mural, done by Tracey Tine, showed Hendersonville High School in an early twentieth century background.

The drama classes involved themselves in several activities. Among these learning situations were improvisations in which the students followed no written scripts and acted on impulse. They mainly focused on improving speaking skills and performing in front of an audience.

Art teacher Mark Phillips puts student's raku in water.

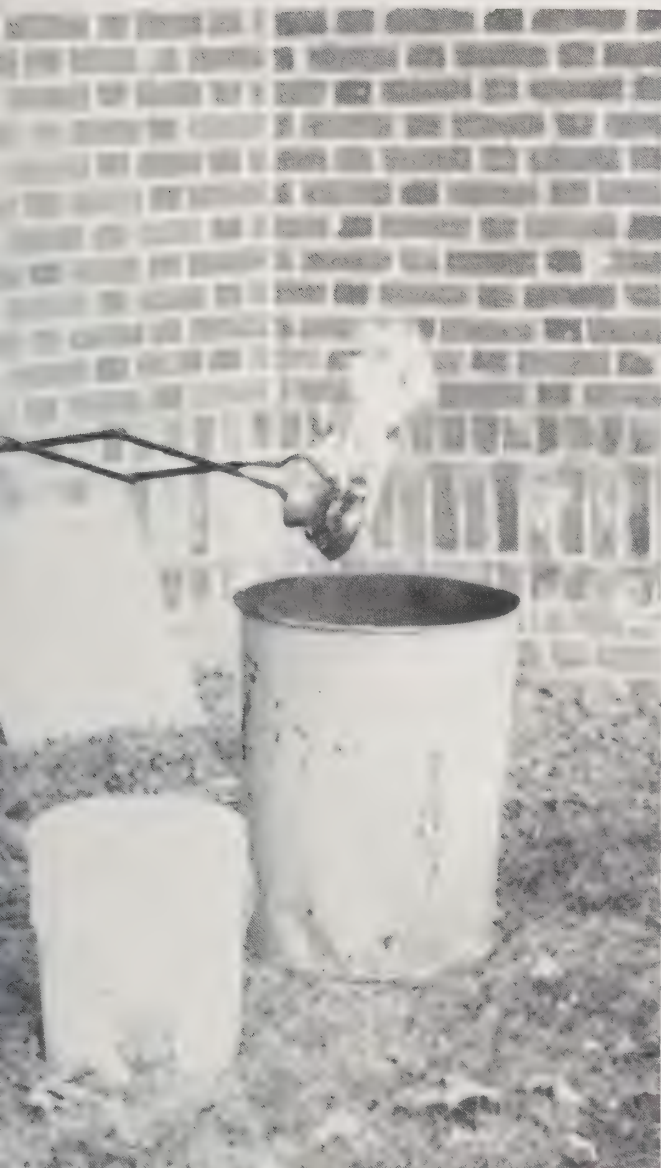

Excelling in another area of the arts, Elizabeth Byrd concentrates on playing the violin.

In the spotlight, Steve Colbert sings his heart out in a drama performance.

ARTS ARE BASIC

With practice and hard work, the Hendersonville High School band maintains its high standard of performance.

ARTS ARE BASIC

ARTS ARE BASIC

The band spent its time working in two areas. For the fall and winter months, the band practiced hard for its performance at the football games. For the rest of the year, the band challenged itself with harder music and prepared itself for symphonic band concerts.

Concentrating on improving their singing abilities, the members of the chorus worked hard the whole year. The chorus gave concerts throughout the year for different schools and civic organizations.

Not often recognized, the freshmen chorus is a good preparatory class for the advanced chorus.

Lined up for a performance, chorus members Gerald Simpson and Brad Jones wait patiently for the other members to take their positions.

Year of the Bearcat

Spirit Week, a tradition at HHS, was an overwhelming success this year. Each day of the week had a designated activity for each student to participate in and demonstrate his spirit.

On Monday an observer could find HHS students stamped with the honored paw mark on their faces. On Tuesday, Inside-Out Day, it was not uncommon to find a student with his jeans on backwards, with the pockets hanging out and with tags showing. HHS students came to school Wednesday in high style, wearing their finest fashions with true Bearcat pride. Numerous "look-a-likes" could be found around campus on Thursday, Twin Day, and on Friday students showed off their school colors by wearing red and white and elaborately decorating the halls and the cafeteria.

The festivities continued on Friday night with the Bearcat football team scoring another victory and with the presentation of the Homecoming Court and Queen. Finally, came the culmination of Spirit Week with the Homecoming Dance on Saturday.

As can be seen, the students at HHS once again proved that they had not only spirit but also a touch of class!

The HHS Blues Brothers, Jay Ford and Matt Phillip, take life in stride on Twin Day. We know they have style, but the real question is "can they sing?"

The run-through for the homecoming game against Tryon displays this year's catchy theme for spirit week, "Year of the Bearcat."

Jennifer Pace, like other students, joins in spirit week activities by showing off her custom-made Bearcat paw.

Mrs. Pride, Mrs. Norman, Mrs. Lovvorn, and Miss Henderson display their spirit of friendship and prove that all twins do not have to look alike.

On Dress-Up Day Mindy Hodge, Jennifer Laughter, and Lisa Ryan meet the occasion by looking their best in the latest fashions.

Trading Places

The powderpuff game has always been one of the most enjoyable events of spirit week. Even though the game had to be postponed this year until November 25, it still turned out to be great fun for all who participated.

After many weeks of hard practice, both the Senior-Sophomore and the Junior-Freshmen teams showed up with nothing but victory on their minds. As the game got underway, it was obvious that both teams had been coached well.

By the time the half arrived, the powderpuff teams had taken their respective sides to discuss second-half strategy. Half-time entertainment was provided by the band and presentation of the luscious Powderpuff representatives and court. The 1985 Powderpuff Queen, Jemima Jennings, brushed her beautiful, brunette hair back as she happily accepted her newly bestowed title.

The second-half of the game showed the Junior-Freshmen team just what the Senior-Sophomore team was made of — talent. The Senior-Sophomore team was victorious with a score of 16-6.

Thanks to the band, the beauties, and the fans, the powderpuff game was one of the exciting fall events of this year.

A rather "leggy view" of Gladys Glidewell and Jemima Jennings, two powderpuff lovelies, does not phase their escorts in the slightest. The escorts really ham themselves up for the evening also, as they trade places with the guys.

At the powderpuff game Wilma Williams and Brenda Rogers sport perfect fall outfits, as well as delightful — and somewhat feminine — smiles. The powderpuff representatives display a unique blend of female sizes, shapes, and proportions.

Mindy Hodge, junior, flashes the universal "number-one" sign during the powderpuff game. Freshmen and junior spirit rides high.

A Queen is Crowned

Electing the homecoming court was a complicated process, well-organized by sophomore Laura Johnson. The procedure began with the nominating of candidates. Next, each class received a list of candidates representing the class and voted for three girls. The three names receiving the largest number of votes were compiled into one list. The entire school then voted for two people from each class; the two from each class receiving the most votes were named to the homecoming court. The queen was the senior girl with the largest number of votes.

The homecoming representatives from the Freshmen Class were Jessica Laughter, Summer Mackel, and Felicia Orr. From the Sophomore class they were Margie Bond, Jennifer McArthur, and Susan Payne. There were four representatives from the Junior Class — Patti Falvo, Kesha Fields, Marsha Jackson, and Amy Yost. From the Senior Class the representatives were Courtenay Blair, Lisa Mazzeo, and Dawn Momot.

This voting process proved to be an effective method of ensuring a fair election.

Rainbow in the Dark

One of the highlights of this year's spirit week was the annual Homecoming Dance. The Homecoming Dance is always very special because it is the one formal dance that all students may attend. The social committee and the student council worked very hard to turn the 1985 dance into a great success. Preparations, like deciding the theme and making the tickets, began weeks in advance. Decoration began Friday after school and continued on Saturday, November 9, when many student council members woke up bright and early to complete the decorating of the gym. It took quite a while, but all the time and hard work paid off.

Everyone who attended the dance got all dressed up and arrived about 8:00 p.m. Sounds Unlimited provided music while the students had a great time dancing, eating, and socializing.

The 1985 Homecoming Dance, which was enjoyed by all, was a very appropriate ending to an exciting week of sports and spirit.

Dade Vanderwerf shows he can "get down" with the best of them at the dance.

Many members of the student council, including Stephanie Shipman, design and carry out the plans for the dance.

The Homecoming dance is a time for romance — a time for couples. One of the couples in attendance was Roy Masters and Susan Phillippe. As can be seen by their smiles, they thoroughly enjoyed the dance.

Everyone enjoys the chance to socialize; and the dance provided everyone, including Sherry Weinberg and Tonya Webb, a perfect opportunity to catch up on the latest in HHS gossip.

The decorating begins early Saturday morning. For some, like Tracy Williams, just waking up early proves to be a difficult task.

MONDAYS

MONDAYS

After the weekend, which seemed to fly by, the students knew that they had to go back the next day, Monday. Mondays were started out by oversleeping and coming into homeroom late. Teachers began new material and usually lectured all period. With this new material, the teachers assigned homework. All this work made the day go even slower. The task of staying awake in class became harder and harder and eventually impossible.

Lunch finally provided a break where the students could catch a breath and talk over with their friends the past weekend's activities. The students then had to go back to class for three more periods. After school, the students went their various ways relieved that tomorrow was not Monday.

Trying to stay awake, Tami Dalbo cannot wait until class is over.

FRIDAYS

FRIDAYS

Friday: the day everyone looked forward to with anticipation. Classes on Fridays were usually laid back, and the teachers were in a good mood. Friday really started after school with a pep rally. Students gathered at the senior entrance, and the cheerleaders led the crowd in a few cheers. After the pep rally was over, groups of friends could be seen talking about their school day, the game, or usually their plans after the game that night.

Most of the students arrived at the game early so they could talk and mingle. Once the game had started, everyone found their seats. After the game, students could be seen going off in many different directions. Many went to the sockhops, parties, but most of them went to Mr. Gatti's. There they got a large pizza among ten people because no one had much money, and they sat for hours and talked. With sometimes 50-100 people in Mr. Gatti's, the noise level became a dull roar. But at 11:00, when the local news and sports came on, the restaurant was instantly noise free, as the crowd watched a repeat of the Bearcat's earlier victory. Afterwards, many hit the late-night parties, but most hurried home to meet their curfews.

After school during a pep rally, Darin Jennings and Ben Alexander talk about their plans for the night.

Known for his "craziness," Coach Bruce Snyder dares someone to grab his necktie.

CLASS OF 1986

Something has attracted the individual attention of Larry Featherstone and Mark Jackson during a moment of after-school relaxation.

How do you spell relief? David Groce's reply — FRIDAYS! Friday afternoon has him looking forward to his weekend plans.

Beth Anderson looks a little perplexed while Deanna Miller seems to know perfectly well what she is up to.

A look of confusion, frustration, and fear, all mixed in one, comes across Stephanie Capps's face as the intricacies of physics elude her.

"Don't you dare take my picture," warns Diane Stenson.

Time on Task

Each new school year brings thoughts of "back to the books." A student's last year in high school is definitely no exception. All of our efforts in our past eleven years of school culminate in a grand finale — our senior year.

We are expected to keep up with school work, participate in many extra-curricular activities, and decide what the future will hold, while providing the leadership necessary for a successful school year. To establish a definite leadership role, the senior class actively participated in the many clubs and organizations that Hendersonville High School offers.

In deciding what the future years will bring, most seniors agree that their many years of school had not been in vain. Academics ranks high in a senior's objectives, but also much consideration is given to athletics, the Croft Cup competition, the Senior Play, and ultimately, graduation.

Student Council meetings would not be the same without Marion von Doenhoff. As student body secretary, she records the minutes of every meeting.

Sabrina Justice enjoys her lunch break so much that she doesn't bother to clear the table before digging in.

Time Out

The first sign of fall traditionally brings the thought of cool weather, colorful leaves, and football games. Along with the Friday night football games were soc hops, parties, or just evenings out with friends. Seniors took advantage of these always-busy weekends as they realized that their days of high school were numbered.

Along with the added responsibility of being seniors came many advantages. Off-campus lunch was a privilege eagerly awaited by all high school students. This privilege was not taken lightly, for all seniors plan ahead for this brief escape from the usual routine.

Leaving campus and getting back to class on time became a game of "Survival of the Fittest."

After school jobs, college visitation, pep rallies, and holidays — all contribute to the busy schedules that the senior class follows.

SENIORS • SENIORS • SENIORS

The comings and goings of high school students never cease. As an involved senior, Gerry Diamond is constantly on the move.

'87 - The Class

The junior class faced a very full year that kept them constantly busy. Their schedules consisted of not only academics, but also friends, sports, plans for the Junior-Senior Prom, class rings, SAT's, and preparations for the college years that lie ahead. Many juniors were faced with questions about life after high school.

What next?

Besides worrying about college, juniors had to face the ever present threat of research paper deadlines. They spent long hours shut up at the library with their noses in books. Junior English also offered a wonderful chance to learn about Middle English: "Whan that April . . ."

The junior class, with a great amount of spirit, won the hall decorating and banner contests. The students showed tremendous talent in their class.

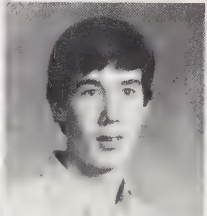

Being a junior was a big job this year. This was an important year for most juniors. They proved they could work hard and handle the pressures placed upon them. The 1985/1986 year was a great success.

Lunch with Friends

Lunch time provided a relaxing moment during a hectic day for juniors to be with their friends. They anxiously awaited the bell which signaled the time for a break from classes, teachers, and tests. Most juniors used their lunch break for other things besides eating. It was not unusual to see books and papers spread over a lunch table as students rushed to finish a homework assignment.

For some, lunch meant time to use the phone to talk to a friend or relative who was home sick. In fact, the most important part of lunch was being able to talk with friends, to catch up on the latest gossip, or to have someone lend a sympathetic ear to life's daily problems. Groups of friends, laughing and cutting up, could be seen standing around a car. Certain couples found lunch a time to catch a few special minutes alone. However, all too soon the bell rang to signal the end of lunch and the beginning of another class.

'88 - Dominates

The sophomore year is usually the first year that students can really get involved in high school. After suffering through a freshman year of not knowing what was going on, they finally became sophomores where they could really participate in school activities.

Suddenly students were allowed into certain clubs that they could only patiently wait for as freshmen. Sophomores felt competent in competing with the juniors and seniors in spirit. They were beginning to be role models for new freshmen.

Webster's states the word sophomore comes from the Greek word sophos (wise) and mores (foolish). After being freshmen, sophomores are "wise" in the ways of HHS; and, after one views the hard work and spirit of the sophomore class, they could hardly be called "foolish."

Alive with Spirit

This year's Sophomore Class projected more enthusiasm and spirit into school activities than most sophomore classes. After getting a taste of high school life as freshmen, they were ready to give the juniors and seniors a run for their money.

They showed their spirit in several ways. They participated wholeheartedly in school-sponsored activities. During spirit week for football season, the sophomore class often had the greatest percent of participation. Sophomores often led the cheers at ball games. Many of the clubs were dominated by sophomores.

The closeness of the sophomores class was probably one reason it projected so much enthusiasm. The students always worked together in a cooperative, caring atmosphere. This closeness was, no doubt, a main factor in their motto, "Class of '88 dominates."

Many sophomores find French to be an interesting class despite a sometimes heavy work load.

'89 - Mighty Fine

Being a freshman was tough — not knowing where to go or what to do. To make it worse, among required courses for freshmen were physical science, health and physical education, and computer science.

Physical science taught freshmen all about the laws of nature, machines, electricity, etc. Although most freshmen probably thought this class would be awful, they found it could be interesting and useful. In coming years they would have the basic knowledge that would make physics easier.

Physical education was another required course. This class was also called health for part of the year. In physical education freshmen learned how to dress and undress quickly. They were also given the privilege of running "the block." In the early fall freshmen were easily spotted because they had dripping wet hair and smelled of chlorine.

The 1985-86 Freshman Class officers are treasurer, Drew Adams; president, Tim Gore; secretary, Felicia Orr; vice-president, Susan Brittain.

Freshmen were also required to take computer science. In this class they learned information that many would use later to advance themselves in the computer field.

Although all of these classes were sometimes an extra burden on freshmen, they did have the satisfaction of knowing that in physical science and computer science they were learning things upperclassmen did not know.

Behind the Wheel

To many freshmen and sophomores getting a license was a big factor in their coming-of-age process. Driving gave many a chance to participate in more activities and feel independent — plus no more waiting for rides!

The first step toward getting the infamous, laminated "passport to freedom" meant taking a driver's education course, which consisted of classwork and behind-the-wheel training. This task was not as easy as it sounds. Students had to draw over one hundred road signs and memorize their meanings, as well as pass the Driver's Handbook test. Also, they had to learn how to perfect the two and three point turns and parallel parking (no easy feat!).

Soon training and preparing were all over and having that plastic card to show off at school had made all the work worthwhile. The only obstacle left was to talk Mom and Dad into letting the new driver have a car.

NEW TEACHERS MAINTAIN

This year Hendersonville High School added eight new faculty members to its staff. Although the number of new teachers was greater this year than in previous years, the teaching qualities at Hendersonville maintained its usual superior level.

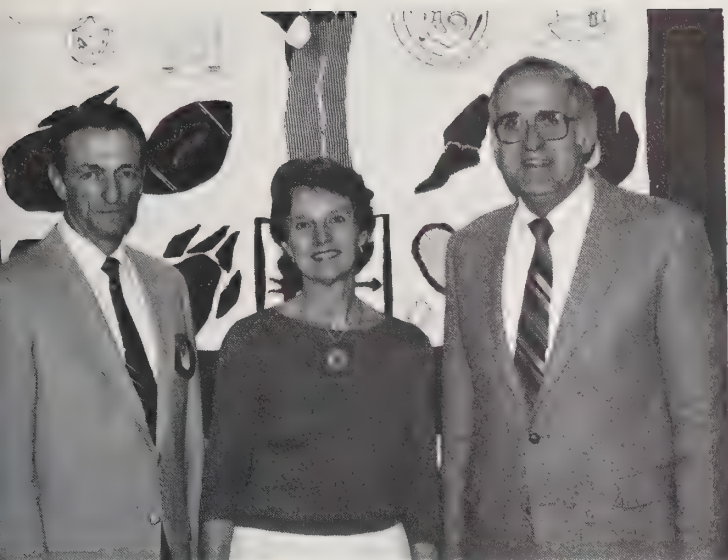

This year's additions to the staff included Mrs. Davies (American history, government-economics), Mrs. Upton (French I, II, III, and IV), Mr. Phillips (art and crafts), Miss Gibson (food service, family living, and fashion merchandising), Mrs. Childress (dpt), Mrs. Henderson (aide), Mrs. Dennis and Mr. White (English).

Despite the fact that these teachers have only been here one year, they have already taken an active role at Hendersonville High School.

Mr. Phillips, a new member of the faculty at Hendersonville, helps and instructs students in the field of art.

The new teachers at HHS contribute both time and energy to maintain our standard of excellence.

The Administration at HHS includes Tom Wilson, Gail Johnson, and Jim Pardue.

Physical Education Department includes David Pierce, Phil Brintnall, and Kathy Egan.

Social Studies Department includes Bruce Snyder, Betsy Davies, and David Kohlenstein.

Mr. Orr and Mrs. Lawson do their impression of human question marks.

The Counseling Department includes Onita Wray, Jack Johnson, and Loretta Stover.

QUALITY OF EXCELLENCE

In spite of Mrs. Cunningham's arthritis, she is able to devote her time to not only teaching her students but also guiding Mrs. Davis, her student teacher, as well.

TEACHERS WHO GIVE

Teachers, new and old, at Hendersonville High School know there is more to the job than just showing up for class. Extra hours spent in preparation and free time donated to special activities are common practices of the faculty.

Activities that made the school year special and enjoyable would not have been possible without the generous help of the faculty. Ski trips, clubs, and classes are all backed by teachers who give up their time.

While there were several new faces among the faculty this year, these new teachers joined an experienced staff. The blend offered a combination of change and stability to the administration.

All of the teachers showed again and again they were interested in helping students achieve our goals whatever they might be. From college to career, the first steps students take to the future are the result of their careful guidance.

A SENSE OF PRIDE

"To teach is the basic, inclusive word for the imparting of knowledge or skills and usually connotes some individual attention to the learner." — Webster's Dictionary.

To Mary Cunningham there's more. "To teach is to instruct, to lead, to guide, to share and to care. To teach means to understand the age group you are working with, and the problems they might have. To teach is to give all of yourself to the task at hand . . . You have to love to teach."

More than fourteen teachers at our school first learned to love the learning process as students. They attended HHS as students and then returned in their adult years as teachers.

For the last 25 years, Tom Orr has been on the faculty of his Alma Mater. When Mr. Orr was a student at Hendersonville, he said it was the teachers that inspired him to become a member of the profession. He says that it has been a sense of pride in the school and its traditions that have seen him through his quarter century as a teacher.

In general, it is not the honors or the pay that keep our teachers coming back. It is the exchange of ideas and feelings with students during the course of the year that make their job meaningful. Each year teachers meet a new group of faces; and, by the end of the year, they know each individual as a separate personality. This process has benefited many individuals who attend Hendersonville, whether it be as a student or as a teacher.

HALL OF FAME

Leadership, scholarship, athletics, and arts are all qualities which represent the students that were chosen for this year's Who's Who at HHS. Faculty members were given the challenging task of selecting outstanding seniors for this honor.

Out of the twenty students who were nominated, fourteen were chosen to represent the Class of 1986. They were Joey Ashley, Richard Cagle, Gerry Diamond, Wes Erb, David Knoble, John Norman, Jennifer O'Cain, Boyd Safrit, Beth Shelton, Tong Tang, Christie Thomas, Chris Vaughn, Marion von Doenhoff, and Shelly Webb.

These students consistently exhibited their outstanding abilities and talents.

These students, chosen by HHS faculty members, make up this year's honorable Who's Who.

Beverly Russell

"A teacher, a friend, a superior, a confidant" are the words used by a former student to describe HHS' teacher of the year. For the last seventeen years, Mrs. Beverly Russell has been bringing life into the classrooms of Hendersonville City Schools. Her co-workers praise her effectiveness and enthusiasm in the classroom, but to really understand her ability one must hear the story from her students.

"It's not hard to appreciate even Moby Dick when you see it through her eyes," wrote one.

"She makes you believe that you are good and that's a special gift," said another.

Beverly Russell takes her enthusiasm past the classroom too. This year she actively sponsored the Sophomore Class, the school newspaper, and Socko magazine. Mrs. Russell also served on the Media Advisory Committee, the Hendersonville High School Benevolent Committee and helped to co-ordinate the Community Volunteer Training Program.

Mrs. Russell says of her profession, "I believe that every student is capable of learning and that the teacher should strive to find the most efficient and effective way to teach him."

The final question she asks is "Did the student benefit from my contact with him?" We say — yes!

Mrs. Russell, 1985-86 Teacher of the Year.

Mrs. Russell and the Red & White staff work hard to produce the next issue of the school newspaper.

SPORTS

In any sport there is always a possibility of being hurt. Several people attend Joey Ashley who is flat on his back after an apparent injury.

The referee gives sign of Tim Carberry's defeat of his opponent during a wrestling meet.

With a soaring jump shot, Brad Jones shoots the basketball over a defender.

On the junior varsity volleyball team, Sherry Gunderson prepares to serve the ball.

Football

Football, among other things, played a big part in bringing the students of Hendersonville High School together into a common unit.

Some changes were brought about in HHS football this year because the school was moved to a lower division. In the lower bracket, the team earned the conference crown and was not defeated until the third round of the state playoffs. Fans argued that the Bearcats could hold their own in the higher division as they had for many years already. Sometimes the team had to play smaller, out-of-the-way schools that were really no match for them and in which the hardest part of the game was the long bus ride to get there. In the end, though, the Bearcat fans showed great support for the Bearcats.

The HHS band showed its spirit by cheering and playing consistently and by providing the halftime entertainment, as well as doing a large number of pushups for every touchdown that the team scored.

The most important part of the football season, however, was not the fans or the band, but the team itself. The players, coaches, and managers put a great deal of effort, sweat, and determination into what turned out to be an extremely successful season.

Although the team had many starters who were seniors and who will be graduating, Coach Phil Brintnall is looking forward to next year's season with the upcoming group.

Junior Sam Gash narrowly escapes the grasp of a defending player as he carries the ball downfield.

On the Sidelines

The air was full of suspense while the HHS football fans awaited the arrival of the Bearcats. Upon sight of the Bearcat team, hysteria broke forth from the crowd. As the team charged through the banner, applause and cheers increased. The escape was completed by the formation of football players into the huddle on the sidelines to discuss the game plans. Coach Phil Brintnall momentarily calmed the players so that he could instruct them on the "how to's" of the present game.

As the game progressed, players constantly shuffled on and off the field. During this shuffling, the coaches were shouting commands and showing their good examples of P.M.A.

The tired team acquired energy and stamina from the water boys who were always on the sidelines. The triumphant Cats began their victory celebration at the sidelines before going to the locker rooms.

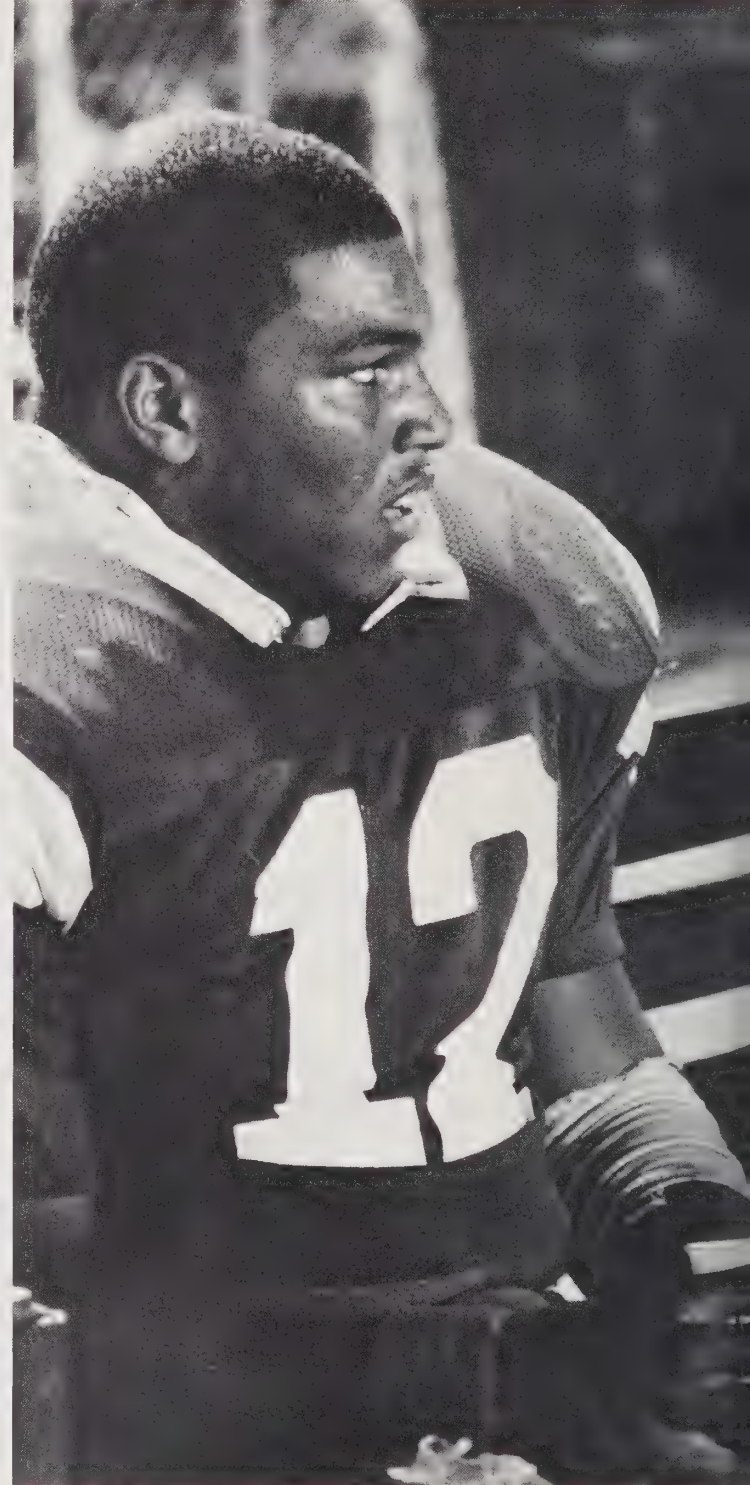

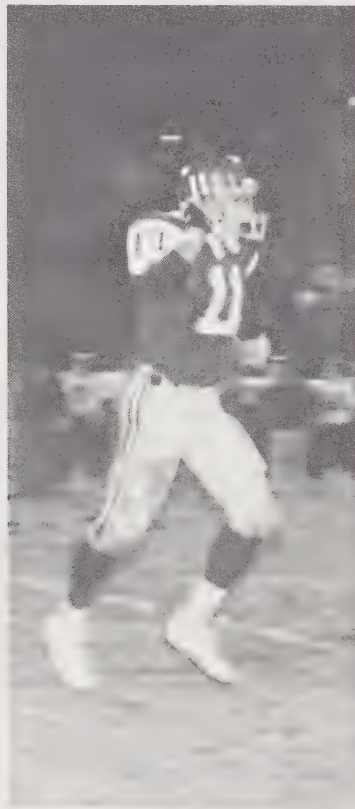

In football games, the sidelines are very important factors to the teams because from them came the moral support, energy, caring coaches, and excitement. All of these attributes make for a winning team, but two of the very important attributes of HHS that are along the sidelines are the cheerleaders and the ever enthusiastic fans.

Coach Phil Brintnall, like all other football coaches, does his utmost to run a successful ball team from the sidelines.

Coach Roy Carter smiles to show his pleasure at a game well played.

During a rare moment of relaxation on the sidelines, Sam Gash is accosted by two, young "players-to-be."

Joey Ashley takes a quick glance at the stands during a well-earned rest on the sidelines.

The mighty Bearcats drive for another score.

Basketball

Bearcat boys varsity basketball has long been an HHS winning tradition. This year was no exception, especially since HHS was moved to the 1-A conference. The Bearcats completely controlled most teams they played although they had a height disadvantage. What this year's team lacked in height, they made up for in quickness and finesse. In many games the Bearcats' best offense was their defensive domination.

The Bearcats operated as a cohesive regiment, and the season was characterized by an atmosphere of family unity, with no one outstanding player. The four starting seniors — Marcus McMinn, Willie Smith, Ross Martin, and John Norman — acted as leaders.

Coach Wilkins coached the team to victories in the County Tournament, the regular season conference, and the Conference Tournament. The Bearcats had a very successful season this year through dedication, hard work, and much support from fans.

Basketball

Basketball, a winter sport, began in early November and ended in March. The games began with the tip-off and often ended with an explosive finish at the buzzer. As the game progressed, the excitement of the crowd became ecstatic as the team scored again and again. The bench and Coach Wilkins, along with the cheerleaders and the crowd, assisted the squad to victories with good strategies, cheers, and moral support. Although the players actually won the game, the spectators assisted greatly in these wins. The combination of HHS fans, Coach Wilkins, and the squad showed that basketball is a true team effort. As in past years, HHS basketball was a winning sport.

Basketball

Girls basketball reached a high level of performance this year. They enjoyed a strong winning season and a berth in the sectional playoffs. The Bearcats tied for the conference championship, won the Henderson County tournament, and placed second in the conference tournament. With a conference record of 7 and 1 and a regular season mark of 14 and 6, the Bearcats were led by all-conference senior Shelly Webb. Shelly, sophomore Yvette Stephens, and junior Cynthia Black averaged in double figures. Webb averaged over thirteen rebounds a game. Tracy Greene, Elisa Hutchison, Suzanne Sheaman, and Andrea Carter were solid starters. Shelly was most valuable player in the Henderson County Tournament and, along with Stephens and Black, won all-conference honors. Other players who contributed greatly were Brenda Becher, Leslie Apple, and Shun Watkins.

Yvette Stephens awaits a rebound.

IV Basketball

The 1985-86 junior varsity basketball team, under new coach Gary Rivers, had a much improved record of 17 and 5. The team, composed of all sophomores and one freshman, is the building ground for future HHS varsity teams. The team led by captain Bryan Johnson and co-captains Dan Young and Cyrus Waters, consistently performed as a unit; thus, there was no one outstanding player. The junior varsity squad tied with Rosman for the regular season, but it also beat Rosman for the conference crown in the tournament.

— Ski — — Team —

During the months of November through March, which are the ski-season months, it was not uncommon to see cars with pairs of skis securely attached to their tops. The members of the newly developed ski team competed in races each Wednesday. These ski races were held at Cataloochee in Maggie Valley, NC. In order to be on time for the events which began at 6:00 P.M., the team had to leave at 4:00 P.M. Often, they did not return home until midnight or later.

Skiing, a brand new sport at HHS became a derivative of the also newly developed ski club. Miss Anne Gibson sponsored both team and club. The ski team was mostly made of guys. Only two girls were on the squad. On an average, the team finished fourth or fifth against eleven other teams each meet during the season. The HHS ski team did an excellent job for beginners. The team members, most of whom had previous skiing experience, proved that skiing was yet another area in which Bearcats shine.

Soccer

A new sport, soccer, entered the athletic program at HHS this year. The group of dedicated soccer players that used to be known simply as the Soccer Club transformed itself into a full-fledged soccer team.

In its first season the soccer team was the new kid on the block, and it had to really be a team in order to show that it was tough and was a team to be reckoned with. The "new kid on the block" proved itself and left no doubt that its second season would be even better.

The junior varsity soccer team also played an admirable first season. The J.V. team gave the ninth graders a chance to play in a smaller league before moving up to the varsity team.

The most important thing that happened in soccer this year was that the teams let it be known that soccer was as much a sport as football, basketball, or any other sport for that matter. Soccer raised itself up a notch in the eyes of the Bearcat sports' enthusiasts.

Cheerleading

The cheerleaders represented HHS and its pride this year. Throughout the year these girls maintained their enthusiasm by boosting school spirit within the student body. HHS cheerleaders were pace setters as they supported and cheered the school and teams to victory and as they devoted their time and energy to our school.

The long hours of singing, cheering, and making run throughs were nicely rewarded as the cheerleaders got the crowds to their feet at the pep rallies and games. Their constant spirit was always contagious and vivacious.

Although the cheerleaders were great, it also took the student body to gain pep. The sophomore and junior classes especially displayed their spirit by battling over the coveted Spirit Stick and by attending many pep rallies. All of this abundant spirit sparked victory into our athletes.

Swimming

The HHS swimming program, which has only been in existence for three years, expanded in participation each year. The 1985-86 team was made up of more than fifty percent freshmen. This large number gave Coach Loretta Stover a positive outlook about future swim teams.

Swim team practices and the first-ever home swim meet were held at the YMCA. The practices were held from 6:00 a.m. to 7:15 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday mornings and on Friday afternoons from 4:30 to 5:30.

The tough weekly practice routines produced strong teams for both the boys and girls. The squads generally finished second overall of six teams at each meet. Four members of the HHS swim team qualified for the state sectional meet in their individual events. These four were Allison Kirkley, Boyd Safrit, Virginia Richards, and Julie Safrit. The girls 200 medley relay team also went to sectionals.

This year's swim team, which greatly improved over previous years, showed that swimming was another area where Bearcats really excelled.

— Cross Country —

Cross country was one of the many fall sports at HHS. With no seniors on the team, Coach Richard Brown had to look for juniors to lead the squad. Evidently they did very well because this year's team earned the conference championship. The cross country team could be seen faithfully practicing each day. This daily routine led to much improvement during the course of the season. This style of running could only be accomplished through determination, stamina, and true dedication. Mark Hadley especially demonstrated these qualities by qualifying and participating in the state championship run. Cross country is a lonely, difficult job with little support from fans. These runners did a great job for HHS.

Wrestling

The 1985-86 wrestling team, composed largely of freshmen and sophomores, had a very impressive year. The team's record was five, nine, and one. Not only did the squad improve its record over the previous year, it also won the conference championship. Coach Snyder's Bearcat wrestlers compiled a team total of 190 points to win the conference tournament which was held at HHS. Contributing to these 190 points with conference wins were Leon Ivey, Tyrone Shelf, Tim Gore, Chris Battista, Matt Philipp, and Joey Ashley. Three members of the Bearcat team placed in the state sectionals meet: they were Tyrone Shelf at 105 pounds, Chris Battista at 155 pounds, and Joey Ashley in the heavyweight division. Also, Joey Ashley was named the team's most outstanding wrestler this year. His individual record was 22 and 3 with 18 pins.

Coach Bruce Snyder provides a constant source of discipline and encouragement during practices, as well as during matches.

With only two seniors leaving, Coach Snyder, where wrestling is concerned, definitely has something to look forward to in coming years.

Words of wisdom during frequent pep talks given by Coach Snyder are usually very helpful as Maxwell Thompson knows.

Volleyball

Coach Jack Johnson, in his third year as the HHS volleyball coach, was very optimistic upon entering the 1985 volleyball season. The Lady Bearcats, led by captains Cynthia Black and Valerie Simpson, finished with an impressive 10 and 5 record. This record was accomplished with the assistance of Shelly Webb and Cynthia Black who were the seasonal high scorers for the Bearcats.

With only two experienced seniors on the team, the squad's efforts exemplified much improvement over the previous season. The team achieved an excellent conference record and finished second in the state sectional tournament. The increase of supportive fans attending the matches spread enthusiasm and proved that volleyball is an up and coming sport around HHS.

The team will lose Tracy Greene and Shelly Webb to graduation. The 1985 team displayed true Bearcat pride and dedication as it devoted many long hours of hard work and determination to produce one of the finest girls' volleyball teams ever at HHS.

National Honor Society

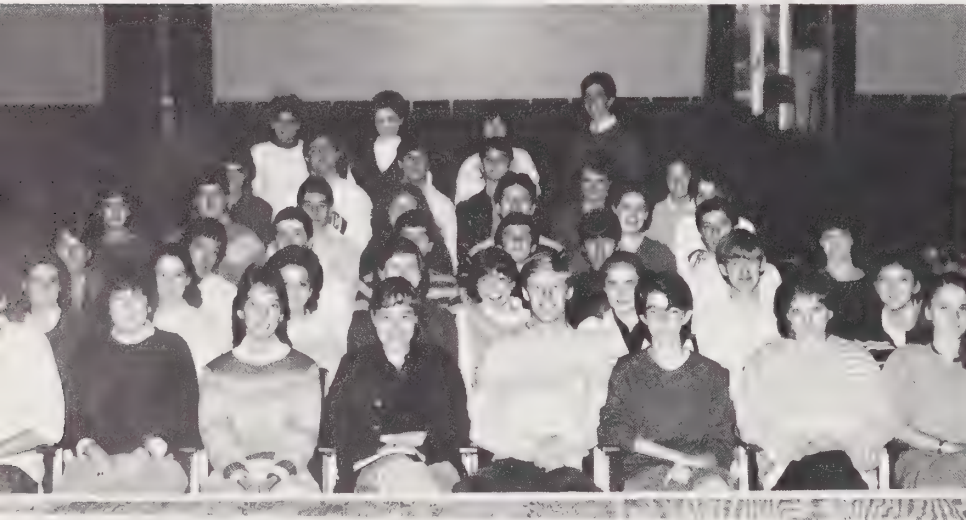

Membership in the National Honor Society was for this year's members more than a great honor — it was a symbol of outstanding achievement in the areas of leadership, character, service, and scholarship. The Valentine Chapter of the National Honor Society spent a busy year serving HHS and the community in a variety of activities.

As sponsors of the school-wide can drive, the Honor Society supported ideals of conservation while earning funds for the Lynn R. Roberts Scholarship, given annually to an outstanding senior. The Honor Society also helped out at HHS by working ticket booths at ball games and tutoring students in many different courses of study.

Mrs. Alice Lawson and Mrs. Betty Bates, sponsors, formed the backbone of the organization as they led the Honor Society through successful activities and worthwhile projects. They gave of their time, energy, and skills to support and build the extraordinary personal qualities characteristic of Honor Society members. The Honor Society students at HHS worked closely and determinedly to maintain the high standards that accompany this very rewarding organization.

The Latin Club celebrated its year of activity with many projects and cultural events. At Christmas time they partook in the Saturnalia Feast, a Roman holiday celebrating the new year. Through club trips, such as

Spanish Club

Spanish slides, presentations, and speakers — all were windows of education and understanding for the Spanish Club this year. Miss Lois Gibbs, sponsor, directed the Spanish Club through another year of cultural activities and events. The Costume Day gave members insight to the dress and traditions of Spain. Literary Club

The Literary Club once again had a "socko" year as it worked with devotion and creativity to publish HHS's literary magazine, SOCKO. The club organized the publication, as well as added their own creative literature to that of the student body. SOCKO was composed of short stories, poems, prose, and art work — all of which reflected the talents and abilities of Literary Club members and other student contributors. Through club outings like the trip to the home of great literary figure, Thomas Wolfe, the Literary Club was able to appreciate some of the history of literature.

Red and White

From the very first moment that the RED AND WHITE rolled off the press, HHS became a more informed, well-rounded student body. Under the supervision of Mrs. Beverly Russell, HHS's newspaper skyrocketed to the ranks of excellence in news, sports writing, and editorial comments. One such editorial published by the RED AND WHITE dealt with the concern of many students about the driving dangers of senior off-campus lunches and the time element which limited the safety in travel. Because of the RED AND WHITE's publication of this concern, an extension of the lunch period was given to seniors. The ever-increasing quality of the RED AND WHITE, as well as the dedication of its writers, editors, and sponsor, made HHS's newspaper play a vital role as a central means of communication in school.

Beth Shelton, Scott Shelton, and Justin McGuire spend another exciting day preparing the Red and White for the student body.

Computer Club

The Computer Club, sponsored by Mr. Baron Jackson, enjoyed an exciting year of playing computer games and designing programs. Members developed valuable programming skills as they learned to solve programs and correct errors in their programs. The Computer Club was responsible for maintaining the HHS computers, but it took advantage of its freedom to use the machines whenever need or desire dictated the use of one. HHS's Computer Club members discovered the joys and frustrations of computers as they spent hours of being entertained by one of man's best friends.

DECA

The Distributive Education Clubs of America's organization at HHS discovered through vocational classes ways to develop job skills and leadership abilities for future business careers. The DECA club organized and worked the concession stands at Bearcat football games, as well as attended a leadership conference. DECA also went to competition in various business-related fields, such as general merchandising and advertising. Through these and other activities, the HHS chapter of DECA, sponsored by Mr. Ted Brackett, learned valuable occupational and leadership skills.

VICA

HHS's VICA club enjoyed an active year of service and education through the guidance and support of Mr. Harry Dotson, sponsor. The HHS chapter of the Vocational Industrial Club of America combined service and productivity when they reconstructed the school's flagpole this year. The VICA club was very successful in providing its members with opportunities to participate in educational, recreational, social, and vocational activities. VICA proved to be an excellent source for the development of self-confidence necessary for its members' futures in business and trade skills.

FHA

The FHA Club blossomed this year at HHS under the guidance of first-time sponsor, Miss Anne Gibson. The Future Homemakers of America provided numerous opportunities for its members to build self-confidence and leadership skills in a variety of ways. Whether they were raising money for the United Way or sending Valentine's Day wishes to area rest homes, the FHA continually exemplified family and community living skills. Through active participation in FHA week, HHS's future homemakers helped others to develop interests in home economics, home economics careers, and worldwide brotherhood.

FBLA

The Future Business Leaders of America proved to be one of the fastest-growing organizations at HHS this year. FBLA started the year off with a bang, as they worked together with the DECA club to sponsor a spaghetti dinner in which they were able to earn two hundred dollars. The fund-raisers' profits were used to assist the members in their trip to the FBLA District Convention, where they competed in various business fields. Mrs. Mary Cunningham, sponsor, continually offered her support and aid to all of FBLA's enthusiastic members. Through various workshops and club excursions FBLA encouraged HHS's business students more than ever to increase their understanding, knowledge, and skills of the business world.

Thespians

The Thespians Troupe at HHS was composed of students interested in the many facets of drama and the theater. Under the skilled direction of Mr. Tom Orr and Mrs. Eleanor Reim, the Thespians made this year an exciting learning experience. Plans for the year included attending an area play, entering state competition, and executing service projects such as cleaning and taking inventory of the prop room of HHS's Drama Department. Thespians also became involved by sponsoring the Valentine's dance and participating in school drama productions. Through their enthusiasm for the dramatic side of life, the HHS Thespians added a special touch to the school.

Art Club

The Art Club, with the help of sponsor Mr. Mark Phillips, completed a commendable year of hard work at HHS. The talents of the school's many artists were evident in the work displayed on the bulletin boards and the walls of the first floor and the cafeteria. Splashes of color gave life to an otherwise mundane hallway, and a huge mural of comical-looking teachers added a touch of humor to the students' appreciation of art. Whether it was in the form of sketches, paintings, or ink drawings, the beauty of artistic ability exhibited by HHS's Art Club was highly appreciated.

Band

Strike up the band! The HHS Marching Band had a successful year of promoting spirit and support for the Bearcats. Through lively tunes, excellent choreography, and overwhelming enthusiasm, the band displayed its incredible talent and musical ability at football games at both Dietz Field and other schools. For the ninth consecutive year the HHS band received a superior rating at the Enka Marching Band Festival.

Mr. Stokes, director of the Hendersonville High School band always keeps a positive mental attitude.

HHS's majorettes and flag corps weather the freezing temperatures of November with smiles.

Chorus

The sound of music reached far beyond the halls of Hendersonville High School as the advanced chorus members sang for various civic organizations and choral festivals in the area. As well as participating in the Western District Choral Clinic at Warren Wilson College, the chorus members performed many concerts for the public. Some of the advanced chorus members had the privilege of singing in the Mars Hill Honors Chorus. Members of the chorus learned various choral techniques and disciplines under the watchful eye of Mrs. Eleanor Reim. HHS's chorus spent a busy year learning, performing, and excelling in the aura of music.

HHS chorus members file in to their assigned seats after giving an excellent vocal performance.

Mrs. Eleanor Reim, in a moment of vexation, imagines life after chorus!

"Key" projects helped the Keywanettes and the Key Club open the doors to service and fellowship as they worked toward their goals. Through such activities as the Keywanette charity fashion show and the involvement of both clubs in working concession stands at ball games, they were able to earn funds for the community, as well as HHS. The Keywanettes were very successful this year in "locking into" true Bearcat spirit by wearing spirit tags and sponsoring a soc hop. Mrs. Sharman Norman, sponsor, was an important element in the success of this enthusiastic service club, as she worked closely with all the girls in numerous activities. The Key club worked harder than ever this year to make its organization a "key" benefit to our school and community. With the help of dedicated sponsor Mr. David Kohburn, the Key Club was able to participate in such service activities as raking leaves for shut-ins, winterizing homes, and helping out with Special Olympics. Hard work and unity made these the "keys" to success for HHS's Keywanettes and Key Club.

Front Row: M. Hodge, P. Bristow, W. Brown, C. Thomas, S. Brown, J. O'Cain, A. Yost, M. von Doenhoff, B. Altman, T. Lawson, J. McArthur (Row 2) B. Bryan, Mrs. S. Norman, J. Bonham, K. Bradley, L. Ryan, M. Stepp, K. Bresnahan, P. Story,

S. Berns, R. Mitter, P. Falvo, A. Dewey (Not Pictured) C. Ellis, P. Garrison, S. Justice, J. Laughter, D. Momot, V. Richards, D. Stenson, A. Templeton

Keywanettes share a lot more than just work within the club. Sydney Brown and Angie Templeton exemplify a close relationship.

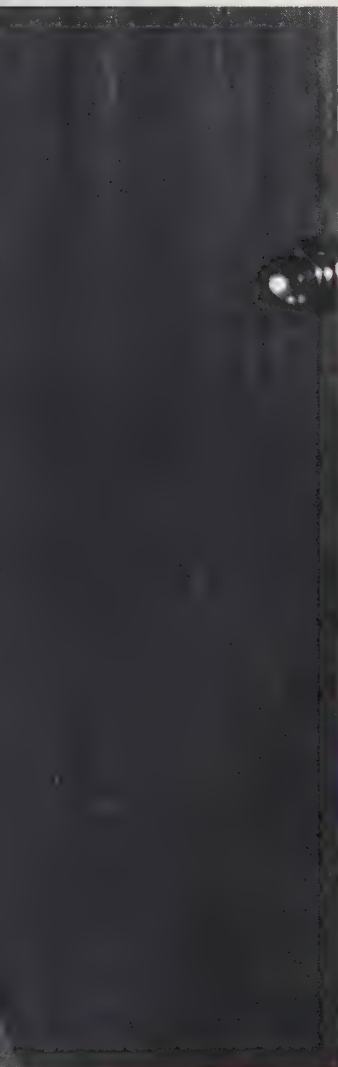

Keywanette member Diane Stenson remembers to wear her t-shirt on the appointed Monday of each month. What a miracle!

Mr. Kohburn, the Key Club sponsor, discusses with Chris Vaughn, club president, what will be talked about at the next Key Club meeting.

John Norman finds the time to flash a smile before a Key Club project that will take up a large part of his afternoon.

Front Row: M. Hadley, B. Salvaggio, B. Williams, J. Wittman, J. Norman, J. Shealy, W. Erb, M. Faust, S. Tisdale, J. Bowling, A. Waters (Row 2) S. Gash, R. Cagle, B. Duncan, C. Vaughn, J. McGuire, D. Groce, S. Shelton (Not Pictured) B. Jones, K. Jennings, D. Knoble, T. Tang

Key club member Jeff Shealy shows that he can be a true beauty.

Student Council

Meetings, note-taking, activities, and decision-making — all were met with enthusiasm and dedication by this year's Student Council members. Composed of students elected by the student body, the Council was more than a governing organization at HHS. The Student Council was a group of responsible, concerned students who worked actively together not only for the school but for the student body as well.

Various committees of the Council worked diligently all year to plan Spirit Weeks, assemblies, dances, student elections, and citizen-of-the-month awards. Through fundraising activities, such as the magazine drive, the Unicef collection, and the Christmas candy grams, the Student Council was able to involve HHS students in some very worthwhile causes.

Mrs. Hannah Edwards, Mr. David Kohburn, and Mrs. Betse Davies guided the Student Council through a successful year with their hard work and devotion to Council members and other HHS students. The Council provided an opportunity for students to voice their ideas, opinions, suggestions, and criticisms about issues pertaining to all facets of HHS student life. The Student Council proved to be a vital organization at HHS by keeping students accurately informed on weekly activities, important events, and school-related issues.

Front Row: K. Cleary, W. Erb, S. Webb, M. von Doenhoff (Row 2) Mrs. B. Davies, S. Murdock, T. Lawson, B. Mays, A. Johnson, E. Metzger, R. Mitter, M. Jackson, K. Lewis, D. Stenson, S. Brown, Richard Cagle displays a frustrated expression as Marsha Jackson gives the orders for the Homecoming dance preparations.

"One, two, three. Smile!" The famous words of photographers were heard more than usual this year as the Photography Club emerged from a group of talented and ambitious photographers at HHS. As the newest club to join the ranks of HHS's organizations, the Photography Club quickly became a tremendous help to various publications at school. The purposes of this club, sponsored by Mr. Mark Phillips, included the increase of appreciation of photography, as well as the creation of an HHS "picture book" filled with photographic memories captured by our own Photography Club.

Mrs. Stover, sponsor of the Career Club, works diligently to prepare meetings.

Newcomers

Another rookie club at Hendersonville High was the Career Club, sponsored by Mrs. Loretta Stover. The goals of the Career Club were to teach its members about various career opportunities and to encourage its members to talk with professionals about different jobs of interest. The Career Club actively pursued its goals by having speakers attend meetings and by openly discussing the pros and cons of many careers. Through these and other activities, the members of the Career Club developed a better understanding of the world of work.

"I'd rather be skiing," was the motto of the newly formed Ski Club this year. Indeed, the Ski Club's members did look forward to their numerous group excursions with great anticipation. Area ski resorts were flooded with HHS Ski Club members this past winter as the most excited group of ski fanatics in the area hit the slopes for the season. Sponsored by Miss Anne Gibson, the Ski Club members developed a sincere appreciation for downhill skiing in the mountains of North Carolina.

Hats off to three of HHS's newest clubs and their members!

COMMUNITY

The fire escape offers a behind-the-scenes view of Hendersonville High School.

After a long school week, Chris Smith, Aresa Gilbert, Scott Gossett, and Pedro Thomas take a much needed rest.

This often-ignored sign welcomes students, teachers, and visitors to the halls of Hendersonville High School.

As a student, Shelly Webb has proven her excellence and ability. In class, she works on her physics.

A very busy teacher, Mrs. Alice Lawson can still keep a smile on her face.

Proofing Laureate material is one of Mrs. Alice Lawson's many responsibilities. She corrects copy and adds suggestions to aid the rest of the Laureate Staff in producing the Laureate.

COMMITTED TO THE RACE

The people who are dedicated, committed to the race, are those that succeed in life. The Laureate honors two of these dedicated people. The 1985-1986 Laureate is dedicated to Mrs. Alice Lawson, and the title of Miss Laureate is bestowed to Shelly Webb.

During Mrs. Alice Lawson's eleven years at HHS, she has embodied the fullness of active participation in every facet of secondary education.

On top of her freshman English classes, she is co-sponsor of the National Honor Society, where she has constantly given her time and energy. She was president of the local chapter of the North Carolina Association of Educators and a member of the North Carolina Teachers of English Association. Mrs. Lawson has also sponsored the Laureate, as well as holding the position of Chairman of the Organized Committee for the Southern Association Review of HHS. Every spring, she also handles the ticket sales of the Senior Play.

The 1985-1986 Laureate is dedicated to Mrs. Alice Lawson because of her outstanding achievements as an educator, leader, and friend of Hendersonville High School.

Miss Laureate of 1985-1986, Shelly Webb is assuredly the epitome of the all-around student. She excelled in the academics, arts, athletics, and student government. Throughout her four years at HHS, she consistently made the honor roll, played in the award-winning band, and was a varsity member of the volleyball, basketball, and softball teams. While maintaining an extremely busy schedule, she also found time to be a leader — and a leader she was! She led not only her class as junior class president but also the school. She very successfully carried out the difficult job of student body president. She has also been active in the Honor Society and FCA. Shelly is an outstanding individual whose determination, sincerity, dignity, and ability combine to make her a true Miss Laureate.

Among Shelly Webb's activities is working the football gates for Honor Society.

In another area of her excellence, Shelly Webb puts up a jumpshot during a varsity basketball game.

THE STAFF

This year's Laureate staff members held the winning ticket in the race for their final goal — the 1986 yearbook. Each member knew that hard work and unity were the elements of success in Setting the Pace. Countless hours on the telephone and on the floor of HHS's room 211 were spent selling ads, writing copy, sorting pictures, and creating the Laureate. Everyone worked together in meeting deadlines and sharing ideas. The making of the 1986 Laureate was definitely a team effort when it came to organizing the book and teaching new staff members the tricks of the trade.

Mrs. Alice Lawson, sponsor, was exemplary in her achievements as an advisor as well as a teacher. Whether she was proofing a section or handling the money, Mrs. Lawson was always willing to help the staff.

The talents and photography of Shea Tisdale, Rene Friede, and Gary Greene were greatly appreciated. The staff was also well supported by the parents of HHS students, area businesses, and the HHS Keywanettes.

Setting the Pace required much dedication and ingenuity as this year's staff members created the portrait of Hendersonville High School in 1986.

On the computer, Ben Alexander asks Jennifer O'Cain a question concerning her copy.

One of the most involved positions on the Laureate staff is the job of business manager. Beth Shelton keeps the financial records accurate and up to date.

While busy most of the time, Boyd Safrin and Sydney Brown have found some time to talk.

As a Key Club member, Scott Shelton helps out by running the football chains for powderpuff.

As the race continued, Hendersonville High School had to struggle harder to remain the pacesetter. The competition was more fierce than ever, but HHS lurched ahead and outpaced the other competitors.

Academics and the arts at Hendersonville High School strived forward and led the pack throughout the year. Athletics greatly profited in the move from 3-A to 1-A. Having played the big school teams for so many years, the Bearcats were far ahead in the race.

The students and faculty worked together in propelling Hendersonville High School to the front of the pack where it was Setting the Pace.
